WHAT DOES A BUSINESS PLAN CONTAIN?

Summary This should briefly describe the organisation and highlight its main aims.

Service This describes the organisation's work. Says what the advantages of your service are, what needs it meets and what its unique features are.

The Market This gives an estimate of demand and who the target customers are. If there is an existing organisation in the area already doing similar work say why a new one is needed and how you have discussed co-operating Operation State where the organisation is located. Describe the premises and other assets it has or will need. Outline staffing needs (including volunteers).

Management Explain the strengths of the people involved and how any apparent weaknesses will be overcome. Also give brief details about any staff employed.

Finances Provide current financial information including budgets and historical information. Give forecasts including cashflow, income and expenditure and balance sheet projections. Give details about how much funding you need, when and from what source.

Environmental Consider all environmental issues that may affect the group, e.g. paper usage and recycling and energy efficiency.

HOW LONG SHOULD THE PLAN BE?

The plan should be concise no more than 8-10 pages with extra information as appendices. Good presentation can make a big difference but does not mean it has to be an expensive glossy document. Don't forget the cover page with the organisation's name, address and the years the plan refers to.
